This directory is a synthesis of information from a range of sources believed to be reliable. Diversicare gives no warranty that the said base sources are correct, and accepts no responsibility for any resultant errors contained herein or for decision and actions taken as a result and any damage.

Please note there may be costs associated with some of the resources and services listed in this profile.
This profile of the Polish cultural community is just one of the many projects undertaken by the Queensland Partners in Culturally Appropriate Care (PICAC).

The Queensland PICAC Project aims to facilitate the development of partnerships between ethnic community groups and residential aged care service providers to implement “best practice” strategies of care for older people from diverse backgrounds. The project is about ensuring the needs of older people from a Polish cultural background are met.

Funded by the Commonwealth Department of Health & Ageing, the project in Queensland is managed by Diversicare under the auspice of the Ethnic Communities Council of Qld.

Population trends within Australia are increasingly characterised by a diversity of people, languages and culture. Coupled with this trend is an ageing population, also with a rich diversity of languages and cultures.

It’s not surprising then, that residential aged care service providers are faced with increasing demands for culturally responsive facilities and care.

This profile aims to assist by enhancing:

• staff knowledge of the cultural and linguistically diverse needs of persons from a Polish background. It also seeks to facilitate the professional competence and development of staff in the provision of culturally inclusive care; and

• the organisation’s compliance with the Residential Care Standards and National Aged Care Standards as they pertain to the issue of cultural and linguistic needs.

The profile provides useful information about a range of topics, resources including books, articles, audio-video aids, services, and so on.

This symbol is used to indicate a ‘tip’, which YOU, as the caregiver of a person who was born in Poland, may find useful in your day-to-day support of that person.

In an effort to maintain the accuracy of this profile and improve its contents, for all stakeholders, we encourage readers to complete the feedback form on the last page to inform us of any inaccuracies or other resources available. It is considered that this feedback will assist us maintain a user relevant and quality resource.

Yours Sincerely

Margaret Hess    Elizabeth Zajac

The Republic of Poland (or ‘Polska’) with Warsaw as its capital, covers 312,685 sq kilometres. It’s divided into sixteen provinces (or ‘wojewodztwo’) - Dolnoslaskie, Kujawsko-Pomorskie, Lodzkie, Lubelskie, Lubuskie, Malopolskie, Mazowieckie, Opolskie, Podkarpackie, Podlaskie, Pomorskie, Slaskie, Swietokrzyskie, Warminsko-Mazurskie, Wielkopolskie and Zachodniopomorskie.

Located in Central Europe, sharing borders with Germany, Czech Republic, Slovakia, Ukraine, Lithuania, Russia and Belarus, Poland is mostly flat plain with mountains along its southern border.
Migration experience
Many Polish refugees came to Australia after World War II.

From 1957-1966 emigration occurred following relaxation of emigration laws by the government of Poland.

The emergence of the Solidarity trade union movement and declaration of martial law in Poland at the end of 1981 resulted in a third wave of emigration to Australia.

During the period 1980 – 1991 Australia granted permanent entry to more than 25,000 Poland-born people, many arriving as refugees.

The improvement in living conditions in Poland and more stringent migration criteria has significantly reduced the levels of Poland-born migration to Australia.

Australian statistics
As at 2001 Census, 58,070 Poland-born persons have settled in all Australian States, with 5,240 Poland-born people resident in Queensland.

Of the total Poland-born population in Australia (2001 Census):
- 38.4% are aged over 65 years;
- 54.3% have either a trade or tertiary qualification;
- 57.2% were employed in a skilled occupation, 25.9% in semi-skilled and 16.9% in unskilled jobs; and
- females comprised 53.1% and males 46.9% ; and
- their ancestry includes Polish (85.2%), Jewish (1.8%) and German (1.2%)
(Source: Polish Community Information Summary, DIMIA 2001)

Within Queensland, individuals born in Poland and aged 60+ years represent some 779 individuals.

Due to the length of time in Australia, Poland-born persons have a well-established network of services and activities (eg Polish Clubs) in most States of Australia and key regional centres in each State.

The above data means the Poland-born person you are caring for is most likely to have been well educated, have worked in a skilled job outside the home and been part of established social and recreational links to other Poland-born persons.

Customs in everyday life
Formal manners are important to Poland-born aged persons.

Greetings. People from Poland, can be quite formal with strangers with politeness at the initial contact being greatly valued.

A handshake is the most common form of greeting upon meeting or leaving and applies almost every time they meet. In mixed company, a women’s hand is shaken before the males’, with an older women’s hand shaken before a younger woman’s hand. The aged Poland-born grew up in a time when it was also customary for a man to kiss the lady’s hand.
Poland-born people enjoy greeting each other, sometimes exchanging embraces or a ‘kissed’ greeting which is a delicate touching of cheeks. This indicates familiarity rather than love, with touch being the display of caring common among family members and friends.

Referring to others. You shouldn’t use first names with people you don’t know or only know a little. Most Poland-born people prefer the use of titles ‘Mrs’ (or ‘Pani’) and ‘Mr’ (or ‘Pan’) followed by the Christian name or surname. Even worse is to call someone only by his or her surname.

The dropping of titles such as Doctor, Professor is also taken as impolite behaviour.

The appropriate use of the person’s name and appropriate titles is particularly important where the person has dementia and may have reverted to their culture of origin naming protocols.

Gestures. It is considered an insult to point your index finger to one’s forehead.

Entering a room. It is courteous to stand when a women or the host enters a room. It is also considered good etiquette for males to open a door for females to let them enter first.

Attire. Sloppy or overly casual clothing is considered inappropriate in public.

Taboos. It is not good etiquette to ask females about their age (eg. ‘how old are you?’). Also tact is needed when discussing World War II and political issues related to the 1945 -1950s.

The above customs are from a time in which the older generation lived and were raised. They may not be evident in the younger generations today – especially those people born after 1960’s.

Cultural stereotypes

Poland-born people are seen as easy going, helpful and very friendly. They are an exceptionally hospitable nation with an old adage of ‘a guest in the home, God in the home’, meaning a guest is to be offered all the best things available. A guest in a Polish home is warmly welcomed and may be overwhelmed by the outpouring of generosity.

For some Poland-born people, alcohol serves a culturally important function, particularly during social occasions, such as name day, birthday, and New Year celebrations. Non- Poland-born people may see the amount and strength of drinks consumed at such occasions as excessive.

Punctuality is also important to Poland-born people with lateness being a sign of bad manners. Depending on the status of the person for whom they are waiting, Poland-born people may be intolerant of lateness in others. Even in social situations, people are expected to arrive on time.

Poland-born people as a group tend to share thoughts and ideas freely and have a keen sense of humour. Most Poland-born people enjoy a robust conversation, talking of their jobs, politics, health problems and misfortunes in the same way as Australians talk about such things as football.
Polish heritage is also associated with high culture in terms of theatre, literature, art, concerts, and opera.

Whilst identifying as Polish, each person also has a strong sense of regional cultural identity. There are diverse cultural and social differences between the 16 provinces of Poland. The region in which the person lived will impact on the person’s preferences related to such things as festivals, food, drink, music, dance, clothing and language dialect etc.

It should be remembered this is just one view of Polish culture and does not apply to every Poland-born person. This reality means YOU should establish each Poland-born person’s preferences.

FAMILY

Family structure
A successful family life is a very important to Poland-born people. The father is generally the head of the family where often both parents work. The most popular family model is the 2 + 2 formula (mother, father and two children).

Traditional family values and loyalty are strong in most Polish households. The elderly play an active role in helping adult children in their daily routine with families. The extended family is also very important, however many aged Poland-born persons do not have extended family.

Attitudes to residential care
Residential care is seen by elderly Poland-born people as the last option and other in-home support programs will be accessed to prolong independence for as long as possible. For many older Poland-born people leaving home and moving into communal living arrangements is equivalent to losing their independence.

It is traditionally expected that children will look after their parents’ needs. However, Poland-born background people who have lived in Australia for a number of years may no longer have an expectation of family involvement in his/her care.
However, as with any community, individual attitudes may vary, and some elderly may expect their offspring to take care of them and therefore be unwilling to accept placement in residential care.

If you need help to provide culturally appropriate care, the assistance of the PICAC Project Officer is available free of charge to your agency or the resident. This service is restricted to greater metropolitan Brisbane and Townsville. For more information on PICAC contact Diversicare on (07) 3846 1099.

PERSONAL HYGIENE

The routines and preferences surrounding the following personal hygiene activities greatly impact on the person’s sense of self, pride, dignity and confidence.

Bathing
Whilst there are no specific norms in bathing, most Poland-born persons want a shower daily, with some even preferring to shower twice a day.

Dress
There are cultural norms surrounding dress whereby sloppy or overly casual dress in public is seen as inappropriate. Clothing also needs to be in good repair and ironed.

What is considered ‘appropriate’ dress is determined by the individual and will be influenced by the region in which he/she lived.

Grooming
Poland-born men and women look after their personal appearance and are concerned about how they look. Women will prefer to wear makeup, jewellery, nail polish, perfume and have neat, well groomed hair. Men tend to use cologne/after shave, clipping nasal and ear hair and trimming nails etc.

It is important each person’s preferences related to their dress, bathing, grooming etc are established as part of their care plan.
PENSIONS

People who lived and paid taxes in other countries are often eligible for a partial pension payment from that country.

Australia doesn’t have a reciprocal arrangement in place with Poland regarding the payment of pensions.

If you receive any foreign pension, Centrelink must be informed and your Australian supplement will be reduced according to the increased amount from Poland. Failure to notify Centrelink can result in a debt and fine being imposed.

A Poland-born person can check his/her eligibility for any pension from Poland by contacting the Embassy:

LEISURE AND RECREATION

Theatre, cinema and musical festivals are favourite forms of leisure for the Polish, with visits to art galleries and museums also being popular.

Soccer is extremely popular both as a spectator and participant sport with athletics and boxing also being popular spectator sports. Cycling is a traditional leisure and sport pastime, as is walking the dog.

Another popular “activity” is watching television (on average 4 hours a day) with visiting shopping centres also becoming very popular in Australia with ageing Poland-born persons. Poland-born persons also enjoy drinks with colleagues and friends plus sing songs etc.

Many Poland-born people, even those who have lived in cities, had an allotment of land and enjoyed growing vegetables and flowers in their leisure time. Even a box or some boxes in which to grow vegetables can be very fulfilling to older Poland-born people. It is also common to have pot plant and potted flowers inside the house (eg geraniums, marigolds, African violets etc).

Older women often like to make preserves, jams, compotes, cakes and pastries.
The above information can assist in developing diversional therapy activities eg tending potted flowers that are kept in the person’s room and/or a small box of vegetables kept in a communal area, and/or cooking cakes or pastries, etc. However, you need to check with each individual his or her preferences in regard to recreational activities.

Daily Routines
Older Poland-born persons like a routine (eg when she/he rises of retires, bathes, has meals etc) and generally have a structured pattern to the day, and likes sticking to these times.

You need to establish with each individual his/her preferences related to his/her daily routine and timings.

RELIGION

Profile

Of the total Poland-born population in Australia the major religions are:

- Roman Catholics (75.0%)
- Judaism (6.6%)
- Lutheran (1.0%) and
- 5.7% stated “No Religion”

(Polish Community Information Summary, DIMIA, 2003)

The daily life of Poland-born people is closely linked with the Catholic Church, which has been strongly maintained in Australia. Most Poland-born people belong to a church, even if they may in practice not be regular attendees.

In Brisbane, the Church of Our Lady of Victories is a spiritual and educational centre, as well as a meeting place for generations of Polish-Australians.

Sunday Mass is, for many Poland-born elderly, a strict ritual. The Polish Mass is celebrated on a regular basis in the Brisbane area:

- Bowen Hills Catholic Centre - every Saturday 6.00pm and every Sunday 10.00am
- Darra Catholic Centre - every Sunday 7.45am
- Woodridge Saint Paul – every Saturday 7.30pm
- A Polish mass at Gold Coast area is celebrating in Stella Maris Church at 10.30am – every Sunday
- A Polish mass at Sunshine Coast area is celebrating also in Stella Maris Church at Maroochydore – once per month 12.00.
Churches where Poland-born people can attend Polish Mass are:

Our Lady of Victories
1 Roche Avenue, Bowen Hills Q 4006
Parish Priests: Father Stan Wrona,
Father Andrzej Kolaczkowski
Ph (07) 3252 2200

Stella Maris
268 Hedges Avenue
Broadbeach Q 4218
Father: Zbigniew Pajdak
Ph (07) 5504 6297

Stella Maris
37 Baden Powell Street
Maroochydore Q 4558
Father: Bernard
Ph (07) 5475 4693

Polish Catholic priests and Sisters visit those residential facilities that care for people from a Polish background. Contact the above churches notifying the Church of any Poland-born residents and visits will be arranged.

Remember there can also be a difference between nominating a particular religion to practicing that religion in one’s everyday life (or whether all or only some rituals/practices within that religion are observed).

Equally, just because a person when young did not practice or observe their religion doesn’t mean as the person ages he/she might now wish to practice.

You need to establish each person’s religious preferences and link him/her into a local minister of that religion.

Important Days
The following listing is not intended to be exhaustive; rather it lists the major shared ‘special days’. You should check with the person or his/her family if there are other special days, which are important to that person.

FOOD AND DIET

Polish cuisine is rich and very filling, consisting of soups, sauces and savoury meats that can be relatively high in fat. The typical Polish dietary staples are bread, potatoes, sausages, vegetables, fruit and milk products.

Favoured ingredients that give Polish food a distinctive taste include marjoram, dill, leaf parsley, wild mushrooms, sauerkraut, beetroot, cucumbers (dill cucumbers or gherkins) mushroom, eggs and caraway seeds etc.

Traditional Polish meal times (which differ from the Australian timings) has evolved from different working hours in Poland (7am – 3pm).

Meals

Breakfast Usual includes bread rolls, or bread, butter, scrambled or boiled eggs, cheese, sliced ham or sausage.

Second breakfast Served around morning tea time, it is usually sandwiches made from rye bread topped with a variety of fillings (eg: cheese, sausages, and hearings – with tomatoes, lettuce etc. plus black tea or coffee.

Lunch This is the main meal and is called “Obiad”, which is eaten early in the afternoon (usually 2-3pm). A normal Obiad would consist of soup, the main course and also dessert.

Supper Can consist of open sandwiches or hot food like soup (especially in winter), dumplings or sandwiches with cold meats.

On Fridays meat isn’t eaten instead it is replaced with fish.

Poland-born people are happy to eat soups (eg. beetroot soup, barley soup, dill soup, pork tripe, chicken soup or vegetable soup). Very popular are also dumplings with meat, white cheese apples, strawberries or plums. Other favourite dishes include buckwheat groats, potato pancakes (which can be served for afternoon tea).

Some traditional Polish dishes include:

- bigos (a rich sauerkraut and meat based dish)
- golabki (cabbage rolls with rice and mince meat)
- barszcz (beetroot soup), flaczki (tripe soup)
- mizeria (cucumber, dill and cream salad)
- nalesniki (pancakes)
- dried or stewed fruit compote
- a variety of yeast cakes and pastries

A variety of Polish recipes can be found by typing the phrase ‘Polish food’ into an Internet search engine.

It is important to establish each person’s food preferences, cooking style (eg fried versus poached), quantity and timing of meals and recorded as part of their care plan.

Trauma situations
World War II is a subject that needs to be handled with tact and understanding. It should not be forgotten that Poland-born aged persons have lived through a very traumatic time arising from not just the war experience but also the years post-war when times were very tough.

From 1945-1953 a “people’s democracy” arose based on the Soviet model (effectively under communist control) which eased somewhat in 1953 when Stalin died. From 1970 - 1981 outbreaks of strikes, demonstrations and civil unrest led to dire food shortages.

During these years from 1970-1981, Poland-born people were imprisoned as political prisoners and large numbers of the younger educated people left Poland. Many families were split up and dislocated to countries that gave asylum. Older people may have lived through these times and consequently suffered trauma, so tact is also required to uncover whether there are any persistent problems.

Attitudes to illness and pain
Poland-born people can at times display stoicism towards pain and may ‘suffer’ in silence; however others will seek treatment as soon as symptoms develop. Some Catholic Poland-born people also believe pain comes from God giving the person another chance to pay/ atone for previous bad behaviours.

Pain-relieving drugs are generally accepted, but some people try to use distraction as a means of coping with pain prior to using medication. Poland-born persons desire to learn as much as possible about the side effects of various medications.

Complementary medicine is also seen to have an integral role in the health of Poland-born persons, alongside western medicine and often without informing medical practitioners. Some will use homeopathic remedies in combination with changes in lifestyle and eating habits. (Some herbal medicine and pharmaceuticals are sometimes privately imported from Poland.) Word-of-mouth medication recommendations also carry a lot of weight with elderly Poland-born persons.

Poland-born people also typically follow medical orders carefully and submit to various kinds of medical treatment, including tests, operations and medication.

Perception of health professionals
Going to health professionals is usual and Poland-born persons are used to the medical hierarchy (i.e. General Practitioners for overall health with referral to Specialists as needed for more in-depth treatment).
Traditionally, doctors and other health professionals are given great authority in various aspects of life and are well respected within the Polish community. Poland-born people are polite to authority figures and therefore aged Poland-born people may not ask a doctor for clarification fearing doing so may offend the Doctor.

Due to language barriers aged Poland-born people prefer Polish speaking medical practitioners.

This may mean YOU shouldn’t perceive a Poland-born person who questions a doctor or health professional as being difficult. Nor should you consider the person as ‘being difficult’ should he/she wants a second opinion or to access complementary medicines of some type.

Palliative Care
Palliative care was not provided in Poland until after 1990. It is likely that Poland-born elderly persons will be unaware that such services exist or what it entails.

Traditionally, the diagnosis of a terminal illness would not be communicated to the person concerned but rather to their families who then decide when and how (if at all) to convey it to the patient.

Occasionally families, relatives and friends may wish to “protect” the person from diagnosis and prognosis of a terminal illness. Very often family members believe that if the prognosis is communicated to the patient he or she may lose the will to live and therefore don’t appreciate such a direct approach.

In light of a possible cultural preference not to deal with this subject directly, you may need to discuss this issue with the relevant family member. Try to check what the family knows about palliative care and if fragmented provide information, documenting any stated preferences on the person’s care plan.

Family members and friends stay with the dying person so that he/she doesn’t feel abandoned.
Death
For Poland-born Catholics, religious rituals include the administration of Holy Communion and the Last Rites.

Funeral customs are determined by the Church and the wishes of the family. After burial, mourners are invited for a wake or ‘stypa’ where drinks and food are served in memory of the person. Most Poland-born people have a stoic acceptance of death as part of the life process, and a strong sense of loyalty and respect for their loves ones.

Relatives also wear black clothing on the day of the burial. The spouse may choose to wear black clothes for up to 1 year (the year of mourning). Graves of loved ones are visited for years to come, particularly on All Saint Day – 1st November, when flowers and candles are placed on the graves.

Cremation or burial will be a personal choice based more on religious beliefs than cultural norms. It is important to establish each person’s wishes in the event of palliative care or death and recorded as part of their care plan.

LANGUAGE

The official language is Polish with each region having its own dialect, which can be more pronounced, in rural areas. Because many of the elderly Poland-born persons have been in Australia for many years, they also speak English.

YOU need to be aware that just because they once could speak English, this does not mean:
a) they necessarily spoke it fluently or extensively OR
b) they have retained these skills as he/she aged OR
c) that it is their preferred language as speaking English can be tiring to the elderly – as they are engaging in a translation-type of process.

The cards are arranged under five headings, in the following order:

Greetings
Food
Personal
Pain
Requests

For situations where an interpreter is needed (see page 22 of Nursing Home and Hostel Care: A Multicultural Resource Kit for guidelines), telephone the Translating and Interpreting Service (TIS) on 131 450 (24 hours).

How to Use These Phrase Cards

There are two ways to use these cards.

1. If the resident can read, you can point to the appropriate phrase in Polish on the card.

2. Otherwise you should read the phrase aloud. Follow the phonetic pronunciation on the bottom line. Remember to speak clearly -- don’t hurry -- and don’t worry if you have to repeat phrase.
